2). Personal Data Collected by the Company

If you are a visitor to the website, we collect data about you only through the use of cookies.

What are cookies?

A cookie is a file that stores website settings. Websites store cookies on users' devices to recognize individual devices and the settings used. Cookies allow websites to recognize whether a user has already visited the site and enable advanced applications to adjust individual settings accordingly. Cookie storage is fully controlled by the browser used by the user, who can restrict or disable cookies at any time.

Why are cookies necessary?

Cookies are essential for providing user-friendly online services. The most common e-commerce functions would not be possible without cookies. Cookies make interaction between the user and the website faster and easier. They allow websites to remember individual preferences and experiences, making browsing more efficient and pleasant. Cookies are used to store website state data, enable online services, collect statistics on users and website traffic, and analyze user habits. Through cookies, we can assess the effectiveness of our website design.
